

Nationals Put Up Game Fight, But Luck Breaks Against Them

PASSES GIVE SOX THIRD STRAIGHT WITH WASHINGTON

By THOMAS S. RICE.

All pitchers look alike to the swatting Sox these days, as they demonstrated to Joe Cantillon yesterday by driving Charlie Smith, one of the prize packages he had been saving especially for the champs, out of the box in the third inning, and then making enough runs off Falkenberg, another good thing, to win the game by 5 to 2.

At that it was a lucky victory, three of the tallies being due to bases on balls.

Ebbed by their close call in the first game on Friday, when Walter Johnson would have shut them out but for an error, the Sox got busy in the proceedings and made two runs before the astonished Smith realized the game had started. After that their deeds were not so glaring, but they were on their feet all the time and gradually accumulated enough tallies to put them nearer third place position in the American League which the critics have recommended for the Sox, because they could play along nicely and land the pennant in the final week without the strain and excitement of being in the lead.

Harry White Wins at Last.

Fleider Jones said last night he was feeling pretty good and thought he would bear up bravely under the strain he was ahead at this time. A prospective slice of world's championship profits is a great stimulant.

Joe White's place position in the American League which the critics have recommended for the Sox, because they could play along nicely and land the pennant in the final week without the strain and excitement of being in the lead.

Charley Jones to Fore.

Silk O'Loughlin was in better shape than on Friday and there were only one or two minor kicks against his decisions.

Charley Jones was the only Washingtonian who got more than one hit off White. One was a clean triple in the fourth inning, the other was a punk affair to White himself in the sixth. Shipke, whose batting is usually most distressing, astonished the natives with a triple in the third inning. The remaining two Washington safeties were as punky as that second bingle by Jones.

For the Sox Fleider Jones (a mature double in the first inning that scored Hahn from first, and two neat singles. Hahn was away ahead of Jones in effectiveness with a man's size victory by driving in two runs, and a single in the second inning that drove in Sullivan.

Hahn's Hefty Hickory.

In fact, Hahn was the real hero of the day, and should be played up accordingly. He was on the job in the sixth with a triple that became a tally. Besides being the sticking star Hahn achieved the distinction of being put out in the second inning by getting in the way of a batted ball from Fleider Jones. That gave Jones a hit when Hahn would have been an easy force out at second. Hahn was out anyhow, but the rather attenuated batting total of the Sox for the reason was increased by one.

Smith proved not only ineffective, but wild in his short career in the box. Hahn, the first man who faced him, was walked, and promptly scored on Fleider Jones' two-time to center. Isbell drove to C. Smith, who kept his head and threw to T. Smith at second, catching Jones between second and third, where he was hounded to his doom. Isbell taking second. Ganley assimilated Donohue's fly, but threw over the moon trying to double up Isbell at second, and Isay scooted to third. Davis landed on first ahead of his smash to Smith and Isbell scored the second Sox run of the initial round.

Sox Finally Rally.

In the second inning the Sox hit it up again. Sullivan drew transportation and White sacrificed. Smith's throw to nip Sullivan, napping at second, went into the far reaches of center field, and Sullivan romped to third. A clean clout to center by Fleider Hahn made Sullivan a run-getter.

Falkenberg pitched the fourth and fifth innings with great éclat, pulling out of a tight place in the fifth and leaving Isbell marooned on third. In the sixth the Sox awoke and gave Falk his finish. He started by tripping to left. Falk started and fanned Sullivan, then weakened and walked White, with two on, Eddie Hahn bulged into the spotlight again with a two-bagger to right that put Rube and White over the fence. Eddie himself perished trying to stretch the double into a triple. That was all for the Sox, but it was enough.

Washington Had Chance.

Washington started slowly and ended badly. Its first run came in the third inning, when Shipke tripled and landed on Tony Smith's infield out. Kahoe batted for Blankenship and fled to Fleider Jones. Milan singled. Isbell made a mess of Ganley's grounder and Milan was safe on second, while Ganley reached first. Rube made a flying jump and pulled down Delehanty's high bounder. When Rube reached the ground and looked over the situation he found Milan coming straight at him, bound for third. Rube promptly touched the runner and the side was out.

Altizer opened the fourth by beating a crack to Isbell, who, by the way, had an exceptionally busy afternoon. Charley Jones tallied with a triple. Blankenship was there with a fly to center that let the speedy Jones finish the circuit. Shipke fanned, T. Smith fanned, and Falkenberg was an easy infield out.

After that the only Washington man to reach first was Charley Jones, on his scratch hit in the sixth, and he was caught stealing.

CLUB SHOOTERS BREAK TARGETS

Call of the Marshes Doesn't Get Them All.

The "Call of the Marshes" was the chief factor in decreasing the usual large attendance at the shootings of the Annapolis Gun Club yesterday.

Read bird season having just opened, gun enthusiasts have transferred their affection from shooting at dummy birds to hanging away at the real article, which is just at present abounding in large quantities in the lower marshes. Hunter, true to his name, came off with the highest score, breaking 83 out of 115 birds. In the medal shoots, James won in Class A, his score being 19 out of 20. Willis won Class B by smashing 20 straight. Dr. Shoup and M. Geyer tied for honors in Class C by shooting 15 each.

BLOOMINGDALE LOST TO BALTIMORE CLUB

The Brown Athletic Club, of Baltimore, won a decisive victory over the Bloomingdale Athletic Club at McDevitt's field yesterday afternoon, 13 to 3.

The faultless fielding of the winners and the batting of Le Mat, Bensed, and Toomey were the features.

Umhaug was given poor support and retired at the end of the fifth inning, in favor of Rube.

This game closes the Bloomingdale's playing season and is the ninth game the local line has played with Baltimore. The Bloomingdales winning five of the series.

CELT AND BALLOT

WIN MORE STAKES FOR J. R. KEENE

Junior Champion and First Special Go to Them.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Two more victories were scored by James R. Keene, a Gravesend today, and now the stable's winning for the season is a way ahead of anything done heretofore in America.

Mr. Keene's winnings amount to $347,000. Celt and Ballot were the horses that brought home the bacon for the Keene stable today. Celt won the Junior Champion Stakes for two-year-olds, and Ballot captured the First Special. The two races netted Mr. Keene $10,700.

Junior Easy for Celt.

Four horses went to the post for the Junior Champion, an event a little short of six furlongs. Celt led the start, and was Uncle Meelick and Firestone. When the barrier went up Meelick jumped out in front and set a stizzling pace through the mud. The Madden colt was closely followed by Uncle. Celt and Firestone were outrun during the first part of the journey. At the half Meelick had had enough, and Uncle in the lead, hard pressed by Celt. Turning into the stretch Miller got Celt in front, and he gradually went away to win by a length and a half.

The race was run in 1:30, pretty good time for the distance and condition of the track.

Ballot's Good Race.

Ballot had comparatively little trouble in the First Special. Keene put Nicol instead of Miller, and Nicol rode the right kind of a race on Ballot. He took the fast colt right to the fore and let him run loose all the way. At the mile he was a length and a half in front of Elton, and the latter was at the same distance before Savidre. Running Water was fourth, Montgomery fifth, and Frank Gill brought up the rear. Ballot tired a bit in the stretch and Nicol had to ride him hard to win by three-quarters of a length from Elton.
